Before you turn your next homework in:

Some good practices for Jupyter notebooks

1. Label each question with a cell that says the question number.
2. Only print things that are necessary (not the whole dataset).
3. After everything is done, restart the kernel to clear the output and then run all the cells again.
   a. This helps you understand if you had any errors with putting cells out of order.